THE JOURNALS OF THE MOUNTAIN CLUB OF SOUTH AFRICA Volumes 104 – 117 (2001 to 2014)

This fourth Journal Index of The Mountain Club of South Africa is published as the Club enters the 125th year since it was formally constituted in the Parliamentary Café on 8 October, 1891. The publication of an annual was proposed a few weeks later and in January, 1894, The Mountain Club Annual was published by the Section Cape Town. In 1931 the name changed to the Journal of the Mountain Club of South Africa.

This Index is dedicated to the men and women who have over the years explored the known and the unknown; at times pushing boundaries and limits, and then recording their experiences, many of which are contained in these publications.

This Index is further dedicated to the volunteer editing teams who have unstintingly given of their time over the years to ensure that this publication happened.

Long may this tradition continue, and be enjoyed by many.

THE JOURNALS OF THE MOUNTAIN CLUB OF SOUTH AFRICA
Volumes 104 – 117 (2001 to 2014)

PREFACE

This fourth Journal Index of The Mountain Club of South Africa employs the methodology used for the three previous published indices: 1891–1968; 1969–1978 and 1979–2000. This fourth edition is only available in electronic format, and can be added to in future..

How to use this Index

The methodology used for compiling this index follows that used for the three previous indices.

Entries appear in alphabetical sequence under authors' names as well as subject headings. Each article is indexed as a whole with added entries where necessary. Each article is entered under the most specific heading that fits the whole article e.g. an article about AFRICA FACE, Table Mt., is entered under AFRICA FACE, Table Mt., not under TABLE Mt.

If a considerable part of an article on a region is devoted to a specific peak in that region, an additional entry is made under the name of that peak.

Always look first under the name of the specific area, route, peak, etc. required. If the information required is not found in articles which deal specifically with that area, it may be found in articles listed under the wider area of which this forms part, e.g. additional information about AFRICA FACE may be contained in an article that deals with TABLE Mt. comprehensively.

Always look through the "see also" references listed after the articles in case the information required may have been entered under a more specific heading.

Routes on Table Mountain are entered under their individual names, e.g. AFRICA FACE, Table Mt. Routes on other peaks and mountains will be found under the name of the peak or mountain.

Illustrations: Photographs that illustrate articles are not given separate entries, but are indicated in the entries for articles as photo(s.) or illus.(trs.) (illustration(s)).

If a specific peak appears prominently on a photograph of a mountain range or neighbouring peak, an added entry is made under the name of that peak, e.g. if Lion's Head appears very prominently on a photograph illustrating an article about Table Mt., the photograph is indicated as "photo." or "illus." in the entry for Table Mt. and an added entry is made under LION'S HEAD "Illustrations". If a peak or mountain, which is not given an added entry, appears prominently on a photograph, this is entered under the sub-heading "Illustrations".

All photographs that do not illustrate articles are entered under the sub-heading "Illustrations".

Maps: Apart from being mentioned in the collation of articles that they illustrate, maps are also grouped under geographical area in a special list at the end of the Index. If a map of a specific mountain is sought it may be found in the general index under the name of that mountain, but see also the list of maps under the name of the province or country.

Mountain Club of SA. The style of the previous indices was followed and therefore many subjects are covered in this wide category, some in subheadings under specific Sections. It is therefore advisable to consult this heading.

Routine matters, such as annual reports, are indexed analytically only for references to specific subjects and persons, most frequently under Mountain Club of SA.

Poems are listed under the heading "POEMS".

Plants are entered under their botanical species' names, with reference to common names.

Changes in the names of countries, provinces, towns, institutions and in spelling. During the period covered by this Index, some name changes occurred in Southern Africa and the process continues. The new names were used for indexing even though the older articles still use the old names. The spelling of Zulu names in the KwaZulu-Natal Drakensberg is in some cases still uncertain.
